THE PEOPLE KNOW.

President Wilson will make no swing around the states. His speech of acceptance will be made at his summer home and may be supplemented from time to time by appropriate short addresses. These will enable the people to keep in sufficiently close touch with his views upon issues that may arise or plans that may be devised or conditions that may develop.

This plan of campaigning is in keeping with the lofty dignity of his high office. Besides, the great masses of the people of the country are already familiar with the achievements of his administration—its purposes and their already developed results.

For four years he has been the central figure of American politics. The fierce light of publicity all that while has beaten upon him and his acts. Publicity has been given to his every utterance, to his every deed. If he has made blunders, the people have had their abundant opportunity to know and to consider them. If he has been guilty of inconsistencies, he has avowed them and they as well as his avowals have been given to the world. If he has rendered loyal and unceasing service, that has been shown.

If he has taken seriously and with all his energy to the sacred task entrusted to him four years ago, the voters know it. If he has burned midnight oil in his study of the tremendous and unforeseen problems which have confronted him as they have confronted no other President, that, too, is known.

If he has at times differed with his party leaders, the public has been promptly advised. If he has kept the faith, the public knows it. If he has shown patience and tact and statesmanship, no speeches from him are needed to enlighten the country.

If he has been bold when boldness was demanded, diplomatic when greater results could be secured by diplomacy than by impetuosity, they who are to decide the coming contest, know it.

If he has kept the country out of a war, the tragedy of which no man could overestimate, they know it.

If he has fortified the country by a vast scheme of preparedness, they know it.

If he maintained his country's honor, unsullied and above reproach and its respect acknowledged by the world, they know it.

If he has been callous to the attacks of political enemies or captious critics for self or party advancement, they know it.

If he has shown his own and the country's sympathies with those who must suffer from the raging conflicts that are holding civilization in a state of amazed horror, they know it.

If he wishes no unfair advantage to come to his own people from the calamities of those of other lands, they know it.

If he has brought to his country out of these dire conditions such a prosperity as no nation in all history has achieved, they know it. If by the legislation he has espoused, he has helped all classes of our people, those who labor and those who loaf, has given equality in all honest endeavor to the former and stimulus to energy to the latter, they know it.

If the nation today is rallying to loftier ideals than ever before successfully appealed to it, they know it.

Therefore, and in all confidence of a vote of approval by the country, he is resting his case upon his deeds, the character he has shown, the policies he has advocated and will leave the use of words to those who are his opponents in this campaign.

STRAWBERRY TEA.

The latest German "Eras" triumph is a substitute for tea. It is simply strawberry leaves, cured in much the same manner as tea leaves. And the Germans pronounce it actually superior to "the much-overrated Chinese product."

Much of their enthusiasm may be due to the fact that the despised "Chinese product" can't be got in Germany for less than $2 a pound. But it might be worth while, anyhow, for a lot of frugal families outside of the Fatherland to experiment and see for themselves whether the strawberry leaves are as good as advertised. If that particular herb is inaccessible, the German expert says that blackberry and raspberry leaves will be found nearly as good.

THE ROAD AHEAD.

In the September Ladies' Home Journal there is a table of what may perhaps be called "beginners' jobs," together with possibilities of growth through them into more advanced occupations.

"Never before have there been so many opportunities of advancement offered to women," says the author of the chart. "But the novice must have a two-edged sword to fight with—preparation and efficiency. The girl who goes to work with the question 'What next?' on her lips will probably find opportunity answering her question; but the woman who flinches, and prayerfully hangs on to her poor position, will never be able to cross the bridge to greener pastures."

A few samples of the possibilities of growth indicated by the chart are the following:

Suppose you are a Bookkeeper. Your work affords training in: Knowledge of financial transactions; Business system; Quickness and correctness of calculation. This may lead to a job as: Expert accountant; Public auditor; Broker; Investment banker.

Suppose you are a children's nurse. This affords training in: Skill in treating child ailments; Acquaintance among families; Ability to amuse; knowledge of child nature. All of which may lead to work as: Trained nurse; Playground supervisor; Director of children's entertainments; Caterer for children's parties.

Opportunities are also indicated for cashiers, cooks, dancing teachers, dressmakers, stenographers, teachers and others. And any man or woman who honestly wants to advance in life and is willing to take the trouble to do so might well begin by making a chart relating to the occupation in which he is at present engaged.

What opportunities for growth are there in the job, in the manner of living after hours, in any other habits or associations? In what directions do these opportunities lead? How best may one take advantage of them?

HITCHING POSTS.

A citizen of Danbury, Conn., has won transient fame by writing to the Danbury News complaining of the lack of hitching posts. He admits that there is a public hitching place in Danbury. But it's too much bother for a man with a horse and buggy to run back and forth between that place and all the other places where he has business.

"Quaint Danbury!" exclaims the Hartford Courant. To think that there is really a spot left in Danbury where a horse can be hitched! The last hitching post in Hartford disappeared years ago, it seems, smashed by a reckless chauffeur.

And in how many towns in America can an old-fashioned citizen driving an old-fashioned vehicle find an old-fashioned post to tie his beast to? That ancient curbstone decoration which antedated all curbstones, which was the first sign of civilization in pioneer communities and which took on dignity and artistic quality as later generations fashioned it in substantial stone and iron—it has vanished. It is as obsolete as the wooden Indian that used to stand before every cigar store before tobacco was trafficked and advertised in print. And with the hitching post is vanishing the watering trough, which once bubbled and trickled and slopped on every Main street, to the comfort of panting horses and the joy of sparrows and bare-legged boys. The modern horse stands without hitching, and thirsts only for gasoline, which he drinks inaudibly and almost invisibly from a pressure hose attached to a tank.

THE GREAT BRITAIN FILM CONSPIRACY.

A political scandal has developed in Great Britain. The British cabinet has been caught yielding to a diabolical conspiracy to have itself filmed and to exhibit the film shamelessly before the British public.

As usual there were women at the bottom of this foul conspiracy. Premier Asquith's wife and certain other dames of high degree had an idea that a movie film showing the cabinet in action in the council chamber would be a fine drawing card for a war charity show they were managing. The cabinet acquiesced, and arrangements were made to pose for the camera.

But the governing body of the empire little reckoned on the storm its action would arouse in the proud and conservative breast of the British nation. Parliament particularly was scandalized. And the rank and file of British subjects, while admitting that they, personally, would be pleased to see the government pictured in the act of governing, nevertheless voiced their horror at the sacrifice of making a public spectacle of so solemn an institution. And as the correspondent of the London Daily Chronicle writes, quite mastered by his emotions: "No one can understand how the members of the cabinet could ever have been induced to lend themselves to a proceeding so little consonant with the dignity and high authority of the high executive body of the British Empire."

Of course, the President of the United States and his cabinet pose for the movies unashamed. So do the Kaiser of Germany and the Czar of Russia. So does the Pope yield to the demands of the democratizing camera. But the British cabinet—dear me! Isn't it just too dreadful for anything!

Now that the government has acquired the ownership of Lincoln's birthplace in Hodgenville, Ky., why not go ahead and buy Monticello, Thomas Jefferson's old home in Virginia? These two, together with the Washington mansion at Mount Vernon, make a natural group of three great American shrines.

We've just loaned Great Britain $250,000,000 more. And nobody seems to have noticed the difference. I would take a far bigger "touch" than that to make a hole in Uncle Sam's waist.

ARIZONA MAY HAVE CHANCE TO HEAR AND
SEE CHARLES HUGHES*Republican Nominee Leaves
Colorado Pleasure Resort—
Will Make Another Western Tour at a Later Date.

(By Review Leased Wire)
ESTES PARK, Colo., Aug. 30.—Charles E. Hughes, Republican nominee for president, who has been spending a brief vacation here, will resume his campaign tomorrow. His itinerary, announced tonight, will give him little rest until election day, unless his plans are upset by the threatened railway strike.

On his return east, Mr. Hughes plans to reach Portland, Me., September 8, after a brief campaign in Maine. Mr. Hughes plans to reach Bridgehampton, N. Y., where he is to remain until September 18. A second tour west is to begin on that date, which will extend as far westward as Omaha and may include trips to Arizona, New Mexico and Texas border points. The present trip eastward is to be made by way of Kansas City, St. Louis, and contemplates a dip into Tennessee and Kentucky.

Mr. Hughes will leave tomorrow for Loveland, Colorado, where he is to address the Laramie County Fair. Before leaving Estes Park he is to deliver a non-political address.

Mr. Hughes is to leave Loveland at 5:10 p. m. Thursday and arrive in Denver at 7:30, leaving at 9 p. m. for Topeka, where Mr. Hughes will deliver an address at the state house grounds. He will leave at 9:50 a. m. for Kansas City where he will make a night address at Convention Hall.

The plans of the nominee from September 4 are contingent upon developments in the railway strike situation. The last two weeks of his campaign are to be spent in New York state, closing with an address November 4 in Madison Square Garden, New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes today left their party for a mountain climb. More than ten thousand feet above sea level they journeyed alone to Bear Lake. Returning to the automobiles, they encountered a snow storm. It was after dark when the party returned to the hotel.

VETERANS MARCH IN LINE DURING LARGE
ANNUAL CONVENTION*Kansas City Is Packed with Visitors as Veterans of the
G. A. R. March in Procession—Big Hall Packed.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 30.—With the annual parade held during the day and the Camp Fire at convention hall tonight, was the climax of the Grand Army encampment. Thousands of veterans marched through streets proud that another year had found them still among the blue clad army.

The parade was without its toll. Dozens of feeble marchers were prostrated along the route. Most of the marchers were revived at emergency stations or by the Boy Scouts who patrolled the line of march with first aid kits. The parade was almost three hours in passing the reviewing stand. The veterans marched slowly, singing the songs of fifty years ago and shouting behind the life and drum corps. Many of the veterans later were taken on a motor tour of the city.

Tonight they crowded into convention hall for the meeting complimentary to Major William Warner of Kansas City, former commander in chief. Business sessions of the auxiliary organizations were started during the afternoon.

SONORA ELECTIONS POSTPONED.
DOUGLAS, Aug. 30.—A telegram received today at Agua Prieta signed by Adolfo de la Huerta, governor of Sonora, ordered the postponement of the municipal elections which were to have been held in the state next Sunday, September 3, to September 15th. No reason was assigned in the message.

The incomplete state of registration of voters in all parts of Sonora caused the order to be issued by the governor, according to Yves G. Leveier, Mexican consul at Douglas, today. He said registration of voters could not be completed for more than a week and the 15th, which is the anniversary of Mexico's independence from French rule, was selected as the date for patriotic reasons, it being a holiday.

An order received at the customs house in Agua Prieta, from Mexico City, specified that all customs inspectors in the border district shall hereafter be paid in Mexican gold instead of the Carranza currency. The order was made effective, beginning with August 1. Thirty-five federal employees in Agua Prieta are affected.

"NICE DOGGIE, HOME AGAIN"A BATCH OF SMILES

"Judge—Now, tell us what passed between yourself and the complainant. Defendant—Well, your honor, there was two pairs of fists, one tripped, seven fire bricks, a dozen assorted hard names and a lump of coal."

"Look here, Mary," said the husband angrily, "I shall be late at the office again. It is half-past eight and not a sign of breakfast yet!"

So the lady of the house sought the kitchen, with the idea of reprimanding the new maid for being late in the morning.

"It mustn't happen again," she said firmly. "I suppose you overslept yourself?"

"You see, it's this way, ma'am," said the girl, in regretful tones. "I'm a slow sleeper, and it takes me a long while to get a good night's rest!"

"That Hurbank man is a wonder," said Maude.

"I don't like a man who tries to be so smart," replied Maynde. "The first thing we know he'll be undertaking to invent a kissless mistletoe."

Romantic young lady, spending the summer on a farm: "Just hear how those old trees in the orchard moan and groan in the storm like the crying of a lost soul!"

Small boy: "Well, I guess you would make a racket yourself if you were as full of green apples as they are."

OF MICHIGAN

Charles Whitney Carman.

Charles Whitney Carman, a young and well-known business man of Grand Rapids, Mich., was ordered by his physicians to get out of town and give his mind and body a rest. He did. He bought a "run down" farm near Alaska, Mich. He found Alaska dead for forty years. Carman had to live briskly; he has revived the social life of the community, extended the school term, and has built up a wonderful community spirit.
